JOINT HEALTH AND SAFETY COMMITTEES

A Joint Health and Safety Committee (JHSC) is a team of individuals that represent both management and workers, who act together to address workplace health and safety concerns, as well as support an organization's Internal Responsibility System. For most provinces and territories in Canada, it is mandatory for workplaces that regularly employ 20 or more workers to form a Joint Health and Safety Committee.

Employers must ensure that a committee is established within the workplace, and that members of that committee are knowledgeable about their roles and responsibilities within the committee.

Training Solution – Online Joint Health and Safety Committees Course

This comprehensive JHSC program is designed to assist both the employer and JHSC members.

By taking this Joint Health and Safety Committees course, JHSC members will:

- Understand the importance of a JHSC –highlighting the Internal Responsibility System (IRS)
- Learn about their legislative requirements
- Determine individual positions within a JHSC which includes a clear description of JHSC member roles and responsibilities
- Learn how to conduct effective meetings
- Recognize guidelines for workplace inspections and making recommendations
- Become familiar with the purpose of accident investigations and:

- Employers will understand their legal obligations regarding JHSCs, and be able to determine the type of representation, structure of committee and frequency of meetings applicable to their workplace
